Oxenham, Edward Lavington, 1843–1896.

Historical atlas of the Chinese empire from the earliest times down to the present or great Ching dynasty giving the names of the chief towns and the metropolis of each of the chief dynasties of China. By E. L. Oxenham ... 2d ed. Giving the original Chinese maps with their English counterparts. London, The Royal geographical society, J. Murray, 1892.

1 p. l., iv, [4] p. 22 (i. e. 45) maps. 20 x 44½cm.

The English counterpart of each map, printed opposite the Chinese, was prepared for the 1st edition published in 1887. As it was not possible to get the English maps printed in Shanghai they were not published until this 2d edition was published. The English counterparts carry the same number as the corresponding Chinese maps.

"Petri Possini ... Observationum Pachymerianarum ad historiam rerum Michaelis Palaeologi, libri tres" : 186 p.

With this is bound the author's Andronicus Palaeologus ... interprete Petro Possino ... Venetiis, 1729. The two works were first published Paris, 1669-1669 in 2 vols. with title: "... Georgii Pachymeræ Michael Palaeologus et Andronicus Palaeologus sive Historia rerum ab his gestarum, Græce et Latine ... interprete Petro Possino ..." In the present edition the two parts were issued independently, although the designation "tom. I", "tom. II" runs parallel with the signatures of each volume respectively.

,Paine, Thomas, 1695–1757.

A discourse, shewing, that the real first cause of the straits and difficulties of this province of the Massachusetts Bay, is it's extravagancy, & not paper money: and also what is a safe foundation to raise a bank of credit on, and what not, (with some remarks on Amicus patriæ,) & a projection for emitting of more bills of credit on the province. By way of dialogue, between a representative in said province, and a certain gentleman, concerned for the good of his native country. By Philopatria. Boston, Printed by J. Franklin, for D. The doctrine of earthquakes. Two sermons preached at a particular fast in Weymouth, Nov. 3, 1727, the Friday after the earthqvake. Wherin this terrible work appears not to proceed from natural second causes, in any orderly way of their producing: but from the mighty power of God immediately interposed, and is to the world, a token of God's anger, &c. and presage of terrible changes. With examples of many earthquakes in history,—illustrating this doctrine. By Thomas Paine, M. A.

The text is the same as that of the edition published by Daniel Isaac Eaton, Jan. 1, 1796. On the verso of the t.-p. of pt. 2 is Paine's letter, apparently addressed to Eaton, condemning the pirated edition of pt. 2 issued in London in 1795, and arranging for the publication of an authorized English edition.

Paine, Thomas, 1737–1809. The age of reason ... ⟨1794⟩ (Card 2)

Imperfect: some leaves at the end are wanting.

Probably a unique copy of a suppressed issue of the first edition, having at the end over twelve pages of additional matter not found in any other known copy. Beginning in the middle of p. 77, where The age of reason ends, the author gives an account (p. 77-79) of his arrest on the morning of Dec. 28, 1793. This is followed by a "Postscript" replying to the accusations of Bourdon l'Oise, who had denounced Paine in the Convention on Christmas day, on the motion to exclude foreigners. Paine refers to and quotes various papers which he had written for the benefit of the French republic, and reprints his anonymous pamphlet, "A citizen of the United States of America to the citizens of Europe," dated Philadelphia, July 28, 1793, the latter part of which is printed under the caption "Of the state of Europe prior to the French Revolution."

(cf. Paine, Writings, ed. by Conway, v. 3, p. [140]–146) These additions seem to have been written soon after Paine's imprisonment, and probably belonged to the work as he intended it to appear, but were suppressed. The volume is dedicated, "To my fellow citizens of the United States of America." It is noticeable that the titles following Paine's name are the same as those given to him in the French version, which was apparently published (but suppressed) the year before the appearance of the work in English. There are many marginal notes, most of them written in ink.

See description of this copy by M. D. Conway (to whom it formerly belonged) in the Athenæum, Aug. 27, 1898, p. 291–292; also cited in the preface to the edition of the Age of reason published by the Truth seeker co., New York [1898], where the account of Paine's arrest is printed at the end of pt. 1, p. 94–95.

First edition in English. The Library of Congress possesses an imperfect and apparently unique copy of a suppressed issue, identical with the above up to the middle of p. 77, where the suppressed issue continues with an account of Paine's arrest and a "Postscript" replying to the accusations of Bourdon l'Oise and reprinting Paine's anonymous pamphlet "To my fellow citizens of the United States of America."

According to Lanthenas the work was written in the early part of 1793 and his translation of it published in the spring of the same year; no copy bearing that date, however, is known to exist.

on the English constitution. II. Of monarchy and hereditary succession. III. Thoughts on the present state of American affairs. IV. Of the present ability of America, with some miscellaneous reflections. The 3d ed. ... Philadelphia, R. Bell, 1776.
"Large additions to Common sense", and "A dialogue between the ghost of General Montgomery ... and an American delegate" also have special title-pages; the latter has separate paging.
The "Large additions" were collected by Bell, who had quarrelled with Paine, and were published as a device to help the sale of this edition of Common sense against that printed about the same time by Paine's new publishers, W. and T. Bradford. With the exception of "The American patriot's prayer", of which he is perhaps the author, Paine had nothing to do with them. According to the advertisement Additions to Common sense; addressed to the inhabitants of America. Philadelphia, printed; London, Reprinted for J. Almon, 1776.

With this work Paine had nothing to do. It is a reprint, with some omissions and considerable additions, of the "Large additions" collected by R. Bell of Philadelphia, the original publisher of "Common sense", and published after his quarrel with Paine, as a device to help the sale of his third edition against that printed about the same time by Paine's new publishers, W. and T. Bradford. According to the advertisement at the end of the Philadelphia edition, the "Large additions" were written by "some worthy and respectable citizens of Philadelphia". cf. Sabin, v. 14, p. 128.
